

Abstract

The present invention is directed to methods of treating a wide variety of diseases, disorders and conditions characterized by excessive activity of substance P. The treatment involves administering peptidases that recognize and selectively cleave polypeptides at Xaa-

5 Pro sequences.